

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to the assembly of the type of clutch plate referred to as "scrapless". A method and system in accordance with the principals of the present invention assembles clutch plate assemblies in a more efficient and robust manner. A method and system in accordance with the principals of the present invention provides for a segmented tooling assembly that can be both linear and circular.